

WCSH changes format

By Cliff Beach

"This year we will be playing top forty music instead of all the rotten oldies that everybody got sick of last year," says Pat Garrett, station manager of

WCSH this year. WCSH will feature its own TOP TWENTY music chart compiled from request box tabulations. A lot of new things have been done (or will be started in the near future) in addition to the new music format and the request box. These include: scheduled shows, organization, a no visitors rule (so the D.J.'s can concentrate on what they're doing), and logging advertisements. Garrett also mentioned that "the music will be rotated so that you don't hear the same song every ten minutes."

Garrett, who obtained his Third Class Radio Operator's license from the FCC this summer, has spent the past few months studying broadcast techniques from Bart Prater and Chuck Holloway of WROV.

Engineer Lee Yosafat and Pat have been modifying the control board and repairing miscellaneous things that were wrong with it last year.

Assistant station manager of WCSH, Ron Shore and Pat have been up to all hours working hard to prepare new promos, football announcements and station i.d.'s.

Both Garrett and Shore agree that "people just don't know how much time and effort is put into these things. We do a lot more than just sit and play records and run our mouths."

So, be listening for the new WCSH and submit your requests. Also, watch for WCSH's TOP TWENTY to appear next month in the Knight Letter.
